IACE TRACK, SARATOGA, N. Y A ig. 6 .- This was the thirteenth day of tle meeting here, and the talent looked for bad luck. The thirteenth day of a riceting, strange to relate, seldom reults profitably to the makers of favorites. For instance—they played Run-over in the opening dash as though everything were all over but the cashing, notwithstanding the fact that Runhad never faced the starter be fore. He was made a 1 to 2 chance. He ran a miserable race and gave the tulent a bad slap in the face. The weather to-day was like a real The weather to-day was like a real summer day. It was very warm and moist. The programme was very attractive and promised excellent sport. The track was dry and fast.

The weights of the most prominent entries for the Albany Handicap, distance seven furiongs, to be run on Thursday next, are as follows:

Clifford, 152; Lissak, 120; Morpheus, 117; Rey et Carreres, 115; Liza, 113; Patrician, 112; Potnate, 112; Butterfites, 110; Sister Mary, 110; 1 ck of Spades, 108; The Commoner, 108; Anniette, 106; Lovdal, 108. FIRST RACE.

Spades closed up. When they straightened out Jack of Spades drew up on even terms with the leaders and for a furlong it was a pretty struggle. Wernberg had the most left, however, and drawing away, he won cleverly by a length and a half from Jack of Spades, who, whipped out, beat Derfargilla a length for the place. Time-1.15.

THIRD RACE. THIRD RACE.

King of Bohemia, 102 (Lamiy) 10-1 16 1 5 6

The flag fell to a perfect start. Axiom rushed to the front and set a terrific pace, soon stringing the field out. Haziet laid second to the stretch, and La Vienta third. When they struck the stretch Griffin went to work on Haziet, and gradually overhauled the filly, who was beginning to tire. Inch by inch Haziet guined, and not until the very last jump did he head Axiom and win by a narrow margin. La Vienta was four lengths away. Time—1.08 1-2.

FOURTH RACE.

FOURTH RACE. For three-year-olds; seven furlongs. April Fool. 110 (W. Midgley) 10-1 4-1 7 5 7

The flag dropped to a good start and Lady Diamond cut out the pace for a half, followed by Kennel, Sufficient and Lucania, so close up that a binnket would have covered the leaders. In the atretch Lucania went to the front, and rawing away won easily by three lengths from Sufficient, who was three parts of a length in front of Lady Diamond. Time—1 29.

Edward McCann, of 858 East One Hundred and Thirty-fifth street, heard Mrs. Twiggs's cries, and gave chase to the brothers. A crowd of boys attemped to head off the thieves.

The "brother" picked up a stone and threatened to brain the first lad who approached. Otto Gatarczyk, sixteen years old, of 115 Trinity avenue, hit the "brother" over the head with a baseball bat.

Foliceman Heffernan caught the other "brother," with McCann's assistance, and the pair were sent in a patrol wag-on to the Morrisania station.

The young thief's nose was broken by the blow from the baseball bat. In his possession was found Mrs. Twiggs's watch and jewelry.

VAN CLEEF AND THE MAPS.

One of New Jersey's Former State Officers on Trial.

TRENTON, Aug. 6.—In the trial of Col. John T. Van Cleef, ex-Secretary of the State Board of Assessors, for obtaining money from the State under false pretenses for maps, Judge Cono ver decided this morning that Col. Loutrel of the lithographic firm of the Francis & Loutrel Co., could identify the handwriting of Capt. Richardson, the Company's bookkeeper, maps were charged to Col. Van Cleef. When the State attempts to offer the books in evidence Mr. Barton will ob ject on the ground that they are not competent testimony, lnasmuch as the witness has no personal knowledge of the entries.

The Court also admitted books with entries for other years than 1894. This favors the prosecution, which is endeavoring to show that unfurnished maps of 1894 could not have been supplied from left over maps of other years.

The Court, in answer to a question from Mr. Harton, said it had decided to admit the books with respect to entries for other years than 1894. This is what the prosecution wanted, to establish the claim that the 1,500 alleged unfurnished maps could not have been supplied from left over maps of other years.
